SCANDI BARN

INSPIRED BY THE NORDIC LOVE OF DESIGN SIMPLICITY, THIS SCANDINAVIAN BARN STYLE HOME IS WARM, INVITING AND AT ONE WITH ITS SURROUNDINGS

Standing tall on a corner block in the picturesque Adelaide Hills, this striking home turns heads on a daily basis. Bearing the hallmarks of the Scandinavian Barn look, it was inspired by homes usually found on acreage with multiple linked pavilions. Its steeply pitched gable roof, dark grey vertical Stria cladding in Dulux Klavier and minimal eaves gives the home its clean lines, while a striking brick chimney with a raw, aged patina brings a contrasting textural element that flows from the exterior into the interior living space. The carefully chosen contrasting colour palette brings together light and neutral shades with a dramatic charcoal grey to create a striking exterior presence.

CONNECTED SPACES

The Scandi Barn look often brings natural materials such as stone and brick together with fibre-cement cladding to introduce warmth and create eye-catching accents. Custom home builders Aaron Martin Construction chose to use James Hardie Stria cladding vertically on the exterior of the home for its eye-catching deep shadow lines and versatility as a material, as well as its durability and low maintenance requirements. This attention to detail extended to ensuring the indoor and outdoor living spaces connected seamlessly, with soaring windows in the main pavilion as well as a servery window from the kitchen leading to an outdoor living area that's made for relaxed entertaining. The result is a warm and inviting home that optimises its location and flows beautifully for comfortable living all year round.
